FOREWORD

The National Women's Political Caucus is devoted to moving women into public sector leadership positions in numbers that will one day be equal to men and accurately reflect our portion of the population. By identifying, recruiting, training and supporting women who seek elective office, NWPC has played a very special role in American politics. Since its founding in 1971 as the political arm of the women's movement, the National Women's Political Caucus has been the only national bipartisan, grassroots network focused on increasing the number of women elected and appointed to public office. As a membership-based organization, our success story is comprised of the stories of thousands of individual women across our country . . . women who have decided that a woman's place is everyplace, from city hall to Congress.

NWPC continues to proclaim the 1990's as the "decade for women in politics." From the governor's office in Texas to a Congressional seat in Missouri gained by defeating an incumbent, women won some impressive victories in the 1990 election. Those victories are only the prelude for 1992, when redistricting will provide opportunities for unprecedented gains by women candidates at the state and federal levels. At the local level, the 1990 election showed dramatic change for women mayors. The local level remains the entry level for many women in politics, and NWPC is prepared to move women into the political pipeline in even greater numbers in the years ahead.

In 1991, we celebrate the 20th anniversary of the National Women's Political Caucus. As a part of that celebration, we present this Directory of Women Elected Officials in honor of the women who have run for or held public office during the last two decades. To the women listed in this book, many of whom are the founders and members of NWPC, we say thank you for helping us move our country closer to the realization of a truly gender-balanced government.

We are extremely grateful to the Phillip Morris Companies Inc., for the ongoing support they have provided for the preparation and distribution of this directory over the past ten years. Their continued commitment to the project and the work of NWPC has enabled the directory to develop into the valuable national resource it is today.

FOREWORD

As a snapshot of American politics, the National Directory of Women Elected Officials is both a survey of our democracy and a tool for change.

For years, the Directory has illustrated the growth of women's political power in our country. Yet even after this steady progress, the 1991 edition shows that only a twentieth of our Members of Congress, a fifth of our state legislators, and a fifth of our mayors in cities of more than 30,000 are women.

Both men and women have come to recognize that, to achieve its potential as a land of freedom and prosperity, our country needs the talents and energy of all its citizens. The Directory is more than a scorecard. It is an invitation to find or to be a mentor; to join a network of political peers; to pick up the pen or telephone. Essentially, it is a call for action.

As part of its committment to equal economic, social, and cultural opportunity, Philip Morris Companies Inc. has sponsored the publication of the Directory since its first issue in 1981. We are proud to serve the community of women who have led, and will continue to lead, the United States closer to fulfilling its ideals.

After ten years in the U.S. House of Representatives, Barbara Mikulski announced her candidacy for the United States Senate. Following a nationally-publicized campaign in which she was helped by a powerful cadre of volunteers, Senator Mikulski was elected with 61 percent of the vote in 1986.

Her win gave her title to a number of "firsts": she is the first Democratic woman to hold a Senate seat not previously held by her husband; she is the first Democratic woman ever to have served in both Houses of Congress; and, she is the first woman to win a statewide election in Maryland.

The feisty Baltimore native became involved in politics in the late 1960's when Baltimore officials announced plans to build a 16-lane highway through the city's historic Fells Point neighborhood. Senator Mikulski soon became one of the key leaders and spokespersons protesting the highway's construction. At one major rally of supporters, she told those in attendance: "We didn't let the British take Fells Point; we didn't let termites take Fells Point; and we're not going to let the State Roads Commission take Fells Point." The anti-road forces were victorious, and Senator Mikulski soon launched a successful campaign for a seat on the Baltimore City Council.

After five years on the council, during which time she established a reputation as an effective, outspoken, hands-on representative of the people, she ran for the U.S. House of Representatives in 1976. Using her network of community volunteers, she won the Democratic primary and went on to defeat the Republican nominee in the general election.

Before running for public office, Senator Mikulski worked in Baltimore as a social worker for a local Catholic charities organization and later for the Baltimore City Welfare Department. It was while working with these organizations on cases of child abuse and child neglect that she developed her deep concern for the rights of children and families.

In the U.S. Congress, she distinguished herself on several committees, including the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, where she worked on legislation affecting the Port of Baltimore - one of the state's largest employers. She also became the first woman ever appointed to the powerful Energy and Commerce Committee - a position that allowed her to work for her constituents on a host of "bread and butter" issues, including railroads, telecommunications, and health care. Currently, Senator Mikulski serves on the Appropriations Committee and chairs its Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Development - Independent Agencies. She also serves on the Labor and Human Resources Committee and the Small Business Committee.

An active and vocal supporter of women's rights, Senator Mikulski was the principal sponsor of the Domestic Violence and Services Act, which was passed by the House in 1979, and of a bill granting direct Medicaid reimbursement to nurse-midwives, which was passed in 1980. Senator Mikulski was the primary sponsor of the Child Care Information and Referral Act, which was passed by the House. An ardent proponent of the Equal Rights Amendment, Senator Mikulski was a leader in the successful effort to extend the ratification time limit.

Congresswoman Barbara Boxer has been on the leading edge of progressive change throughout her political career, exerting dynamic leadership in advancing environmental protection, freedom of choice, human rights, arms control, budget priorities, and military procurement reform. Boxer is currently in her fifth term in the United States House of Representatives, having spent six years on the Marin County Board of Supervisors, where she was elected the first woman President of the Board. Re-elected again in 1990 with a landslide victory, Boxer was elected by the Government Operations Committee in the 102nd Congress to chair its Government Activities and Transportation Subcommittee. The subcommittee will be involved in the critical oversight of public transportation safety as well as the monitoring of federal agencies. Boxer has announced that she will be a candidate for the United States Senate from California in 1992.

Barbara Boxer has worked to promote freedom and equality since the first day she came to Congress. In October 1989, she authored the Boxer Amendment, which would have granted federal funding for abortions for victims of rape or incest, and was the first pro-choice legislation to pass Congress in 10 years.

Boxer has been an ardent defender of the environment since she was elected to public office. In Congress, she introduced legislation to protect the California coast from offshore oil drilling and followed up with a broader bill in 1990 to protect the Atlantic and Pacific coasts from the potential environmental disasters of oil spills from new drilling. She has also sought to lower the nation's dependence on fossil fuels and authored key legislation to promote greater fuel economy by vehicle manufacturers. In addition, her Dolphin Protection Consumer Act is widely credited for moving over 90% of the U.S. tuna industry to dolphin safe practices.

Boxer has been honored for her work as champion of human rights with awards from the Anti-Defamation League, Planned Parenthood, and the National Council of Jewish Women. Groups such as the Consumer Federation of America, the Coalition to Stop Government Waste, American Association of University Women, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights and the Center for Environment Education have all honored Boxer for her work.

Boxer's grass roots popularity reflects her involvement with the communities she represents. In 1990 Boxer was named one of the "10 Women on the 90s" in a listener call in survey by California's KGO-AM radio, whose listenership averages one million people per week.

As a diverse and informed population, the people of California's Sixth Congressional District have fostered a tradition of Congressional representatives whose leadership on quality-of-life issues has been widely recognized. Congresswoman Barbara Boxer has carried on that same tradition with her own dynamic leadership, a leader truly "changing the face of politics."

Schroeder was elected in 1972 and reelected nine times, winning by 64 percent in 1990. Schroeder's strong stands opposing pork barrel and wasteful defense spending have earned her a reputation as a "fiscally conservative liberal." She has been in the forefront of the progressive movement in the Democratic Party, taking leadership on critical issues of foreign and military policy, arms control and disarmament, women's economic equity, educational opportunity, and civil and constitutional rights.

Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro has spent a lifetime in public service working at every level — from our neighborhoods to city hall to the U.S. Congress — for the people of the New Haven area and Connecticut. She was elected to the 102nd Congress from Connecticut's Third District on November 6, 1990. Rosa serves on the Committees on Public Works and Transportation, Government Operations and the Select Committee On Aging.

Rosa was born and raised in New Haven's Wooster Square, surrounded by a large family that immigrated to New Haven and helped define the neighborhood. Her grandmother owned and operated a pastry shop there. Her father, Ted, was an Alderman known for his hard work that earned him the nickname, "Mayor of Wooster Square." Her mother, Louise, is today the most senior member of the New Haven Board of Aldermen. It is from her parents that Rosa learned the importance of public service and that the first responsibility of government is people, families and neighborhoods.

That's why Rosa became one of the first community organizers of the War on Poverty, helping some of the neediest families. Later, with the National Urban Fellows Program, she helped women and minorities by working to create good job opportunities. Rosa was the first woman to hold City Hall's top administrative office when she served as Executive Assistant to New Haven's Mayor. She also served as Executive Assistant to New Haven's Development Administrator, cutting through red tape to bring jobs and federal assistance to Connecticut.

Rosa served for seven years as Chief of Staff to U.S. Senator Christopher J. Dodd (D-CT), helping Dodd build a record of achievement and service that includes the comprehensive child care legislation passed last year by Congress. Rosa worked with Senator Dodd to build a strong foundation for that legislation and for scores of other bills and programs now making a difference to Connecticut, which range from High School Forums for young people to Washington Internships for Seniors.

In 1987, Rosa became the Executive Director of Countdown '87, the national campaign that successfully stopped U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras so that American dollars critically needed here would not support the bloodshed there. She also served as co-chair, with Rep. George Miller, (D-CA), of Pax Americas, an organization committed to peace in Central America.

Representative Cardiss Collins is guided by a deep sense of commitment. For more than 17 years, she has served as a highly influential Washington voice for the people of the Seventh Congressional District of Illinois, as well as for women and blacks. She serves on the House Energy and Commerce Committee and in the 102nd Congress was named chair of the powerful Subcommittee on Commerce, Consumer Protection and Competitiveness. It is significant to note that she is the first black and first woman to serve as an Energy and Commerce subcommittee chairperson.

An ardent supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment, Representative Collins also supports a woman's right to decide whether to have an abortion. High on her legislative agenda is enactment of a comprehensive federal child care program through the Child and Family Development Act. This bill would direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to evaluate the nation's child care needs. It also would provide additional federal funds to increase the number of safe, affordable child care facilities, and help states upgrade their licensing and monitoring of child care facilities.

Congresswoman Collins also is committed to moving teen health off the critical list. She has introduced a bill that would authorize grants to create and support high school health clinics across the country. The clinics would provide nutrition and hygiene counseling, drug abuse education and treatment, and family-planning information and services. An outspoken champion of minority rights, Congresswoman Collins has directed her efforts toward ensuring equal access for blacks in the communications arena. From her seat on the Energy and Commerce Committee, Representative Collins also focuses on the critically important issues of Medicaid, infant mortality, health insurance and alcohol and drug abuse. As a member of the Government Operations Committee and immediate past chair of its Subcommittee on Government Activities and Transportation, she was instrumental in initiating changes in the General Services Administration. These improvements encourage support and assistance for small and disadvantaged businesses.

Congresswoman Collins was the first woman to chair the Congressional Black Caucus. She also was the first black and the first woman to hold a Democratic leadership position in the House of Representatives when she was named Whip-at-Large.

Elected to the House in 1984, Congresswoman Jan Meyers was considered a premier candidate - one with plenty of experience in state and local government and a set of issue positions attractive to both parties. After winning a tough primary battle, in which she ran in a field of five Republicans, she went on to defeat a well-known Democrat in the general election, garnering 55 percent of the vote and the respect of the political community. She ran unopposed in 1986, and was re-elected in 1988 and 1990.

She has been an elected official for a number of years, having served five years on the Overland Park, Kansas, City Council (population 85,000). When Mrs. Meyers became a member of the Council, there were no other women in elective or appointed positions. When she left five years later to join the Kansas Senate, there were women on every board and commission; the planning commission had been expanded by two to allow for the appointment of two women; and a woman chaired one of the commissions. In addition, Mrs. Meyers made countless speeches on "Women in Government" to interest and encourage women to run for office, to speak out and to seek government appointments.

As a member of the Education Committee and Chairman of the Public Health Committee in the Kansas Senate, Mrs. Meyers worked tirelessly for twelve years for bills of benefit primarily to women and children. She authored the first law in the nation to extend health insurance group coverage to women who had lost group status as a result of divorce, death of a spouse, or other reasons. The bill was subsequently adopted in several other states and finally at the federal level.

As the only woman in the Kansas Senate, Mrs. Meyers was instrumental in fighting off the annual threat to rescind Kansas' early ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). She was supportive of progressive laws in Kansas concerning reproductive freedom. She authored laws concerning child abuse and neglect, adoption, vocational education, child pornography, abuse and neglect of the elderly, and nursing home conditions. She was also involved with laws concerning nursing education and practice; and laws affecting conservator and guardianship, and she was active in efforts to make the language used in the Kansas Constitution and Kansas statues sex-neutral. Since becoming a member of the U.S.

House of Representatives, Meyers has served on the Small Business Committee. In 1986 she was instrumental in changing small business laws to allow women to be considered for set-aside programs in federal construction and defense contracts.

Meyers has worked for laws that would encourage voluntary family planning in this country and internationally. She supported the Civil Rights Restoration Act and the Civil Rights Act of 1990. She has consistently supported improvements in salaries for nurses in the federal government and other federal employees.

NEVADA

BARBARA F. VUCANOVICH (R) 1982-1992
Second Congressional District

Born: June 22, 1921, Camp Dix, NJ
Education: Manhattanville College, NY
Committees: Appropriations; Interior and Insular Affairs

206 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515
202/225-6155

Room 3038
Reno, NV 89509
702/784-5003

Congresswoman Barbara Vucanovich (R-NV), the first woman elected to a federal office in Nevada, has been re-elected to serve her fifth term in the U.S. House of Representatives. Since first coming to Washington in 1982, Vucanovich has won the admiration of her colleagues and her constituents for her tenacity, her legislative know-how, and her hard work. The Republican Leadership recently rewarded Vucanovich's efforts, appointing her to the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

Starting with virtually no name identification, Vucanovich's political and people skills have proved to be a winning combination. Active in Republican politics for many years, Vucanovich managed various successful campaigns, including Senator Paul Laxalt's Northern Nevada Senatorial campaign in 1964 and 1974, and Gubernatorial campaign in 1966. She was appointed to run Senator Paul Laxalt's Northern Nevada office in 1974, a post she held until she ran for the second district seat in 1982.

Her political and personal philosophies are reflective of the challenges life has thrown at her. Vucanovich was born at Camp Dix, New Jersey, the daughter of a career Army Officer. She fashions herself somewhat an "Army brat" and is very proud of her heritage. She understands the concerns of military personnel, having lost a brother at Anzio Beach in World War II and then having a son serve two tours of combat duty in Vietnam. Vucanovich took up residence in Nevada in 1949. After the death of her husband, she was left alone to raise five children. Vucanovich became one of Reno's first independent businesswomen, successfully operating a speed reading school and then a travel agency.

Perhaps her toughest battle came in 1983 when, newly elected to serve in Congress, Vucanovich was diagnosed with breast cancer. Despite undergoing surgery, she never missed a vote. Today she is more active than ever and has made preventive care and affordable mammograms a legislative priority.

Remarried in 1965 to George Vucanovich, a Reno business executive, Vucanovich finds time for her legislative chores as well as her five children, fifteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

In 1978, Marge Roukema moved into a new level of public service. She launched a campaign and earned the Republican nomination for Congress. While she was not successful in her initial bid for national office, her campaign style and organizational skills impressed observers. In 1980, she tried again, this time defeating a three-term incumbent Democratic Congressman. Congresswoman Roukema has been re-elected in every subsequent election by increasing margins--winning 78 percent in 1990.

She currently serves on the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs, where she is Ranking Republican Member of the Housing Subcommittee. She also serves on the Financial Institutions and International Development subcommittees.

In 1984, she authored, sponsored and advocated landmark reforms in the nation's pension law that were signed into law. She is a nationally-recognized leader in the effort to strengthen our child support enforcement system. She is also the architect of a bipartisan compromise measure to establish a workable national family and medical leave policy. She now serves on the Republican Leadership Health Care Task Force.

Staten Island, N.Y. 10306
718/987-8400

Susan Molinari was first sworn into office as a Member of Congress on her birthday, March 27, 1990, after handily winning a four-way special election with 60% of the vote. The election was held to fill the vacant seat for the 14th Congressional District of New York, representing all of Staten Island and portions of Brooklyn, including Bay Bridge, Bensonhurst and Dyker Heights. She replaced her father, Guy V. Molinari, who resigned to become Staten Island Borough President. In November 1990, she retained her seat with 60% of the vote.

Congresswoman Molinari serves on the Committee on Public Works and Transportation and the Education and Labor Committee. Ms. Molinari sits on the Subcommittee on Aviation and the Subcommittee on Water Resources of the Public Works and Transportation Committee. Throughout her career in public service, Ms. Molinari has been an active advocate of issues concerning the protection of our environment. Her placement on the Subcommittee on Water Resources, which handles such important environmental issues as the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, Ocean Dumping, and the Wetlands, will enable her to continue to aggressively work toward a cleaner environment.

In her assignment to the Education and Labor Committee, she will be able to participate in the consideration of bills ranging from family and medical leave to the omnibus education bill. Ms. Molinari continues to champion the cause of family-oriented legislation that will improve the quality of life for all Americans.

Prior to her election to the U.S. House of Representatives, Ms. Molinari was the youngest person ever elected to the New York City Council. She was also its only Republican member, the Minority Leader. She began her full-time professional career in Washington, D.C., as a Finance Assistant for the Republican Governor's Association. In 1983, Ms. Molinari was promoted to the Republican National Committee's Political Division as Ethnic Community Liaison. In that capacity, she was instrumental in helping politically solidify ethnic and cultural organizations with the national efforts of the 1984 re-election campaign of President Ronald Reagan.

Susan Molinari's election to office continues a lengthy family tradition of excellence in public service for Staten Island. Her late grandfather, S. Robert Molinari (an Italian immigrant) was elected to the New York State Assembly in the early 1940s. Her father, Guy V. Molinari, prior to becoming Borough President, served in the U.S. House of Representatives (NY-14th C.D.) from 1980 through 1989, and served for six years in the New York State Assembly

A native of Harlan County, Kentucky, Louise Slaughter has spent most of her adult life in upstate New York, where she has represented metropolitan Rochester and its surrounding counties since 1987. Entering politics in the early 1970s as a proponent of local environmental issues, Slaughter defeated incumbents to win seats in the Monroe County legislature in 1975, and the New York Assembly in 1982. Between elective posts, from 1979 to 1982, Slaughter ran then-Lieutenant Governor Mario Cuomo's regional office in Rochester. In challenging one-term Republican Representative Fred Eckert in New York's Thirtieth District in 1986, Slaughter became one of five candidates — and the only woman — to defeat a sitting member of Congress that year.

After only two-and one-half years in Congress, Slaughter was appointed to the powerful House Rules Committee in June 1989 to fill the vacancy left be the death of committee chairman Claude Pepper. Slaughter resigned from the Committee on Government Operations and the Committee on Public Works and Transportation to take the post.

In January 1991 Slaughter, who retains her seat on the powerful House Rules Committee, was nominated to be New York's Democratic representative on the prestigious House Budget Committee. She was also appointed to head the Committee on Organization, Study and Review for the Democratic Caucus. She continues as a member of the Select Committee on Aging, where she has authored legislation to protect senior citizens from insurance fraud and to fund a preventative-medicine program for the elderly. More recently Slaughter has written and helped pass legislation to improve educational opportunities for homeless children, to protect alien spouses from domestic violence and to create a national committee to improve federal support of local law enforcement. All three measures were signed into law in November 1990.

Born Louise McIntosh on August 14, 1929, Slaughter attended the University of Kentucky where she received a B.S. in 1951 and a Masters' degree in public health in 1953. Married to Robert Slaughter, she has three daughters and two grandchildren.

In May 1990, Congresswoman Kaptur was selected to serve on the prestigious House Appropriations Committee. For the 102nd Congress, Congresswoman Kaptur will serve on the Rural Development, Agriculture and Related Agencies Subcommittee and the Veterans Affairs, Housing and Urban Development and Independent Agencies Subcommittee. As a member of these subcommittees, the Congresswoman will play a key role in shaping our nation's farm policy. Before her selection to this exclusive committee, Congresswoman Kaptur was a member of the Banking, Fi-

Because of her work in international trade, Congresswoman Kaptur was appointed to a special House Leadership Task Force on Trade during the 100th Congress. That group led the fight for passage of landmark trade legislation in 1988. In June 1988, Congresswoman Kaptur was named a Co-Chair of the Congressional Competitiveness Caucus. In her role as Co-Chair, Congresswoman Kaptur has distinguished herself as a standard-bearer for America's economic independence, for quality production and a skilled workforce here at home, for a strong defense-industrial base, and for more qualified and committed U.S. trade negotiators to help American business move goods and services into world markets.

Congresswoman Kaptur has also sponsored legislation in many other areas affecting the nation and her district including: new clean coal technologies and ethanol production as new sources of energy for the future; the new GI Education benefits; Agent Orange health protection for veterans; defense cost-snaring by Japan; elimination of illicit drug money laundering by banks; child care in public housing; a World War II Memorial and Museum; and improvements to Lake Erie and all the Great Lakes, including shoreline protection and clean water. She serves as Treasurer of both the bi-partisan Congressional Caucus on Women's Issues and of the bi-partisan Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition. Congresswoman Kaptur also serves as Honorary Chair of the anti-drug abuse campaign in Lucas County, C.A.R.E.S.

Patterson has distinguished herself as one of the strongest voices calling for deficit reduction and federal budget reform, voting for more deficit reduction measures than three-fourths of the entire Congress.

During her second term, Rep. Patterson's interest in budget reform earned her an appointment as Chairman of the Conservative Democratic Forum's Budget Reform Task Force and to the Speaker's Task Force on Budget Reform. Her leadership in this area culminated with the introduction of the Budget Simplification and Reform Act. Rep. Patterson is a member of the Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committee, the Economic Stabilization Subcommittee, the Subcommittee on Housing and Community Development, and the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions Supervision, Regulation and Insurance. She has pushed hard for prosecution on fraud and insider abuse in the financial industry. Rep. Patterson is a member of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, the Subcommittee on Hospitals and Health Care and the Subcommittee on Education, Training, and Employment. She also serves as a member of the House Select Committee on Hunger, and is a member of the bipartisan Congressional Textile Caucus. Unsoeld was instrumental in the passage of the state's landmark Public Disclosure Law which greatly expanded citizen access to public records. She also authored two editions of Who Gave? Who Got? How Much?, summarizing what major interest groups gave to those serving in the 44th and 45th sessions of the Washington State Legislature.

During the first of two terms in the Washington Legislature, she was the architect of a state-wide water quality financing program based on a pay-as-you-go scheme. In her second term, Representative Unsoeld played a major role in the passage of the state's toxic waste cleanup and prevention law.

In her second term in the U.S. Congress, Representative Unsoeld serves on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, and the House Education and Labor Committee. The Merchant Marine Committee has jurisdiction over numerous issues of vital interest to the people of her Southwest Washington district including federal salmon hatchery programs, marine sanctuaries, and offshore oil and gas exploration. A legislative activist, Unsoeld steered over a dozen bills into law in her first term.
